A comparison of the statistical data contained in this Educational Directory with the data published in the directory of last year shows that much progress has been made in many ways during the scholastic year 1922-23. Increases in expenditures have been made all along the line, and the people are more determined than ever before to provide better educational facilities for their children.

But much yet remains to be accomplished before South Carolina can take her rightful place in the educational sun. We are still moving in a cloud of school legislation and are hedged about by obsolete laws written into our State Constitution. The concensus of opinion among educators is that these handicaps should be removed and a system reorganized in keeping with present day standards and modern conditions; that stock-taking time has arrived and that a complete survey of our schools should be made. Likewise, sentiment is crystalizing towards making the state the principal school unit, it being generally conceded that the local district is inadequate for that purpose. If a system of schools could be formed with the state as the fundamental basis of support and the counties and districts cooperating units therewith, we would soon be in position to make some substantial progress along educational lines.

Jas. H. Hope,
State Superintendent of Education.

December 1, 1923.

NEW SCHOOL LEGISLATION.

The General Assembly at its 1923 session passed a number of state-wide educational measures which will be of interest to school people throughout the State. They are:

An Act to make Armistice Day, the 11th of November, a legal holiday.

An Act to amend the law so that one-year agricultural scholarships at Clemson College may become two-year scholarships.

An Act to amend the law providing an equalizing fund for needy schools so that twenty pupils instead of twenty-five per teacher may be taken as the basis of calculation.

An Act to regulate the State adoption of textbooks by preventing more than twenty-five per cent. of changes in primary textbooks, and like percentages in intermediate and high school textbooks at any single adoption.

An Act to amend the law directing the method of issuing school bonds in school districts by making it permissible to accept a record of the district survey previously filed with the clerk of court where no changes have been made in the boundary lines.

An Act to require instruction in fire prevention in public schools of the State, the course of instruction to be prescribed by the State Board of Education.

The High School laws were amended in three important particulars:

1. The State allotment of tuition to be paid for non-resident pupils is to be on the basis of $9.00 a month for actual attendance, instead of $3.00, when the district is entitled to such tuition.

2. Centralized high schools may now be established in groups of districts where no incorporated town of more than 2,500 population is included instead of 500 as heretofore.

3. Provision is also made by amending the high school laws of 1921 for the creation of high school districts in adjoining counties.
