LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL
from
THE SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY

November 16, 1970

To His Excellency, the Honorable John C. West, Governor of South Carolina, and to the Honorable Members of the General Assembly of South Carolina:

Dear Sirs:

We have the honor to transmit the report of the South Carolina State Library for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970.

This report contains a summary of the efforts of the South Carolina State Library for the past year in carrying out its responsibilities for improving library service throughout our state. We are pleased to report that every county has library service available and that libraries have been established in forty-three (43) counties.

The State Library occupied its magnificent building at the corner of Senate and Bull Streets during the fiscal year, after dedication ceremonies at which former Governor, The Honorable Robert E. McNair, was the principal speaker. The new facility makes possible more efficient use of appropriations and also makes serving the State Government and libraries throughout the state more efficient and useful.

The South Carolina State Library urges all of the members of the General Assembly as well as employees of the state and its elected officials to use the services of the library in any way which will help in the improving of South Carolina.

Respectfully submitted,
H. CARLISLE BEAN,
Chairman.

THE FIRST ANNUAL REPORT THE SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY

July 1, 1969—June 30, 1970

The South Carolina State Library was established in 1969. The State Library is the result of action taken by the South Carolina General Assembly in changing the name of the old State Library Association to the South Carolina State Library and expanding the duties of the original agency to include all the duties of a general state library. Among the ancestors of the present South Carolina State Library are the Provincial Library of Charles Town, established in 1698, the South Carolina State Library Board, established in 1929, and the old State Library located in the State House, which was established under the present constitution.

The South Carolina State Library is responsible for creating and improving public and institutional library service throughout the State, for reference and research service for State Government and State Government Agencies, for library service to the visually and physically handicapped, for the supervision of public library building construction in the State, for reference and interlibrary loan service, and for consultant service to public libraries and State institutions. The agency administers State Aid to public libraries and Federal funds under the Library Services and Construction Act.

Service to State Government:

With the dedication of the new State Library building on February 18, 1970, it was possible for the first time to provide reference and research facilities to State Government and State Agencies. The present book collection together with an extensive collection of periodicals, journals, and pamphlet materials, provides a reliable reference resource and is being expanded to include all areas of interest to State Government. A collection of state, local, and federal documents is being developed to add to the effectiveness of reference service.

The State Library is a "library's library" in that it provides direct service to other institutions. Members of State Government and employees of State Agencies use the South Carolina State Library directly for reference and research connected with their work. Other individuals not connected with the State Government may use the State Library upon written referral by their local library. Since the State Library is a research library, it does not furnish recreational reading or provide service to children.

The South Carolina State Library continues to supply an ever increasing number of interlibrary loan materials to local public libraries and to State institutions. Its direct service to individuals is primarily for members of State Government and employees of State Agencies.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY BUILDING

The South Carolina State Library building was authorized by the South Carolina General Assembly in 1965. The building was financed with State funds and with a Federal grant made under the Library Services and Construction Act.

The 60,000 square foot building is of reinforced concrete. All of the exterior surfaces are faced with limestone with bronzed-tinted glass infills set in bronze colored aluminum frames. The mansard roof is bronze colored aluminum.

The building is entered by way of a brick-paved landscaped plaza with two bronze lions on either side of the wide steps.

The spacious reading area is two stories in height, with an overall illuminated ceiling. The mezzanine is devoted to business reference and documents. Under the mezzanine are main desk, reference and periodical areas and the microfilm reading room.

The administrative offices and technical processing are located on the second floor. The building furnishes housing for 500,000 books and seating for approximately one hundred patrons. Special electrical installations provide written as well as verbal communication between the seven levels of the building.

John Califf, of the architectural firm of Geiger, Califf, and Player, designed the building, which was constructed by Lafaye-Tarrant Construction Company. Design consultant was J. Russell Bailey.

The bronze lions in front of the building once guarded the entrance to the DeSaussure mansion in Kershaw County and then stood for many years at the entrance of the old Court Inn in Camden. When the Inn was closed the lions were purchased by a Camden citizen, from whom the State Library Board purchased them for use in front of the new building.

The handsome board room in the new State Library building was furnished and decorated in memory of Mrs. Lucy Hampton Bostick, secretary of the State Library Board from 1929 to the time of her death in 1968. All furnishings and decorations are antiques from the period 1780-1810.

READER SERVICES

With the opening of the new State Library building in February, the State Library was able for the first time to provide reference and research service to State Agencies and State Government. To acquaint all departments and agencies of State Government with the reference and information resources and services available to them, representatives of the reference staff made visits to each State Agency to explain the services of the State Library and to determine the particular library needs of each agency.

In a continuing effort to acquaint State employees with the new service available to them, brochures and posters describing and explaining the State Library's services will be distributed to each employee. A monthly newsletter, designed to call attention to the library's new acquisitions in various fields of interest to State Government, will be published and distributed.

The new State Library building offers unusual facilities to members of State Government and State employees. Carrels for individual study, conference tables and separate rooms where groups may work together on a single research problem, are all available. A small meeting room which will seat twenty-five is open to groups of State employees meeting on library related programs.

REFERENCE AND INTERLIBRARY LOAN SERVICE

To supplement the resources and to strengthen the information services of South Carolina libraries, since 1957 the Reference and Interlibrary Loan Service has provided a strong collection of in-depth background materials and specialized technical materials for interloan, a skilled professional reference staff to interpret and to answer requests for information, and consultation service to aid local libraries in developing their own collections and improving their reference capabilities. Beginning in February 1970 a similar service is provided to libraries in State-operated institutions. Through this sharing of resources the rare, the highly technical, or very expensive book is made available to local library patrons.

FEDERAL AID TO SOUTH CAROLINA LIBRARIES

Following passage of the Library Services Act in 1956, the South Carolina State Library Board (predecessor of the present State Library) was designated the agency responsible for the administration and supervision of Federal Aid to South Carolina libraries. Under the Library Services and Construction Act, the South Carolina State Library is now responsible for the improvement of public library service, the construction of adequate public library buildings, the creation of State institutional library service, the development of interlibrary cooperative systems, and the provision of library service to the blind and physically handicapped. A State Plan to remedy major deficiencies in public and institutional library service in the State incorporates a series of projects to meet specific needs.

LSCA TITLE I: PUBLIC LIBRARY SERVICE

ADMINISTRATION: The Administration Project incorporates general planning, funding, accounting and reporting for the public library program and related activities in the State. Closely associated with the Administration Project is the Field Service Program which includes supervision and direction of Title I projects, administration of State Aid to county and regional libraries, and overall development and improvement of public library service in South Carolina.

PERSONNEL PROJECTS

The success of the South Carolina library program is dependent upon an adequate supply of well trained and experienced professional and non-professional staff to implement the program at the local level. The State Library conducts a personnel program which includes several projects designed to recruit, train and retain qualified personnel.

INTERN PROGRAM: The intern program has been a continuing project since 1959. This program and its related publicity is designed to attract qualified young people into the profession. The project provides work-training experience during the summer for college students and recent graduates under expert supervision and allows them to explore the possibilities of librarianship as a career. The intern program is closely related to the scholarship program, providing one means of finding qualified applicants for that program. During 1970-71, eight young people were awarded internships in eight public library systems. One young person from this number and a second person who had interned in 1969 were awarded State Library scholarships and are currently enrolled in graduate library schools.

SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM: This program is designed to aid in providing adequately trained professional librarians for South Carolina public libraries. Each year several scholarships of $2,500 each are awarded to qualified college graduates for one year's attendance at an accredited graduate library school. During 1969-70, two people were granted scholarships. These scholarship recipients were sponsored by the Chester County Library and the Richland County Public Library. As of June 30, 1970, thirty-nine people had entered library school under the scholarship program or the work study program which preceded it. Of these, four people withdrew without completing the program. However, all other scholarship recipients have contributed their training and talent to the improvement of library service in South Carolina.

IN-SERVICE TRAINING OPPORTUNITIES: The State Library also provides training opportunities for professional and non-professional personnel in order to improve library service immediately. Scholarship grants are given for regular courses in librarianship or for attendance at special workshops, institutes or professional meetings. During 1969-70, eighteen non-professional staff members from eleven county and regional libraries were awarded scholarships to take courses in library science. Basic courses such as book selection, reference and children's literature were taken by the recipients. One library trustee received a grant to attend a seminar sponsored by the American Association of Library Trustees held at Columbia University.

SALARY PROGRAMS: To assist South Carolina public libraries in raising salary levels for professional and pre-professional personnel to the standards recommended by the South Carolina Library Association, the State Library provides a Salary Supplement Project. In order to participate in the project, county and regional library systems must show evidence of local effort and meet other specific requirements.

COUNTY LIBRARY SERVICE

In South Carolina the county is the smallest governmental unit providing a practicable basis for library service. In order to create units of service with sufficient population and financial resources to provide good library service, the County Library Project encourages the unification of independent public library agencies into a single county system serving the entire population. The State Library provides grants-in-aid as well as professional advice and assistance during a demonstration program intended to make the new library system a model of recommended practices and procedures. During 1969-70, the Darlington County Library completed the second year of a projected three-year demonstration program. This program has greatly improved service in the towns of Hartsville and Darlington and has made possible better rural library service through the purchase and operation of a modern bookmobile.

REGIONAL LIBRARY PROJECT

Where counties are too small to provide a sound basis of library service, the Regional Library Project makes possible the creation of a larger unit of service. The project is planned to enable small counties to join together for the establishment of regional systems which can provide a higher level of library service through the sharing of materials, resources, equipment, and personnel. Under the provisions of an individual contract developed specifically to meet local needs, the South Carolina State Library and the regional library board agree to cooperate in a demonstration of good public library service.

During 1969-70, the Abbeville-Greenwood Regional Library completed the fourth year of a planned five year program. At this stage the organization and expansion of the regional system has resulted in a substantially improved level of service for both counties. Additional professional staff, larger book collections, improved bookmobile service, a new library building in Abbeville County, and additional branch libraries are among the benefits of the project.

SMALL LIBRARIES PROJECT

The Small Libraries Project was designed as an exploratory program possibly leading to the establishment of regional library systems. Individual projects enable an established county library to provide service, usually professional supervision and/or bookmobile service, by contract to a neighboring county with a beginning library program. In 1969-70, the Williamsburg County Library completed the final year of the three year project by which the Florence County Library provided professional supervision and assistance in the development of the headquarters library in Kingstree and gave bookmobile service to the communities of Hemingway and Greeleyville. Both phases of the project have been exceptionally successful, resulting in great improvement of library service to the people of Williamsburg County.

Clarendon County Library had had no public library service prior to initiation of a Small Libraries Project in 1968-69. In this second year of the project, the Sumter County Library has provided bookmobile service in five communities under contract with Clarendon County and the State Library. There has been a considerable increase in use of the service in each community. The Small Libraries Project has been renewed for the third year, after which Clarendon County anticipates entering into separate contractual agreements with the Sumter County Library.

BOOK COLLECTION IMPROVEMENT PROJECT

In 1960 a project designed to aid South Carolina public libraries in overcoming deficiencies in their book collections was initiated. In succeeding years, the Book Collection Improvement Project has provided grants-in-aid on a per capita basis to strengthen and enlarge basic book collections. As a result, the quality, appearance, and subject range of book collections in participating libraries have improved substantially. Participating libraries have been enabled to give better reference and informational service and to fill a higher proportion of patrons' requests. The availability of materials has attracted new patrons to the libraries and helped win increased public support. In 1969-70, twenty-two libraries qualified for participation in the project. Expenditures for the purchase or rebinding of books chosen from standard book selection tools totaled $159,605 from project funds.

PERIODICAL PROJECT

The success of the Book Collection Improvement Project and the increasing demands for current information being made upon public libraries demonstrated a need to strengthen the periodical collections. The Periodical Project was initiated in 1964. The purpose of the project was to improve reference service and to facilitate provision of current information by developing current collections and extensive back files of periodicals used for informational and reference purposes. In 1969-70, twenty-three library systems received grants for continuation of periodical subscriptions.

LSCA TITLE II: PUBLIC LIBRARY CONSTRUCTION

The Library Services Act was amended in 1964 as the Library Services and Construction Act and funds made available for public library construction under Title II. As of June 30, 1970, eleven headquarters and branch library buildings and the State Library building had been completed with the aid of Title II funds.

Under construction: Berkeley and Lancaster county library headquarters buildings.

Construction grant approved: Anderson County Library.

The Appalachian Commission made additional grants to the Anderson, Greenville and Seneca projects.

To qualify for a construction grant, a library must be legally established, meet requirements for State and Federal Aid, and demonstrate need. Priority and the amount of the grant are based on the type of library (i.e. regional or county headquarters, branch library, etc.) and population served. Matching local funds must be at least 34% of total construction cost, and adequate local funds for maintenance and operation must be guaranteed.

LSCA TITLE IV-A: INSTITUTIONAL LIBRARY SERVICES

Title IV-A of the Library Services and Construction Act provides for the establishment or improvement of libraries in institutions operated or substantially supported by the State.

Since books are the greatest need in all institutional libraries, the Book Collection Improvement Project was initiated to strengthen book collections to better meet the needs of the residents of the institutions. In its second year the number of institutions qualifying for grants increased from six to eleven. The four juvenile correctional institutions and Whitten Village met the requirements for participation for the first time. Institutions which qualified for the second year were the following: Retarded Children's Habilitation Center, Department of Corrections, School for the Deaf and Blind, State Hospital, State Park Health Center, and Crafts-Farrow State Hospital.

For three smaller institutions different types of projects were devised. Under the terms of a three-way contract between the South Carolina State Library, the Florence County Library and the Crippled Children's Convalescent Center, the Florence County Library gives library service to resident patients. A librarian visits the Center on a regular schedule to circulate books and conduct story hours.

At the Palmetto Center for Alcoholics in Florence, an experiment in the therapeutic value of books was initiated in 1969. A collection of carefully selected paperbacks is shelved at strategic places in the Center to be easily accessible to residents. The collection was increased in 1970 and a similar project begun at Holmesview Center for Alcoholics in Greenville.

In the interest of recruiting institutional librarians, personnel programs are conducted under Title IV-A. When there are qualified applicants, the Horger Library, State Hospital, and the Central Correctional Institution sponsor library interns under the Intern Program of the State Library. These interns may qualify for a State Library scholarship to graduate library school.

In 1968 an advisory council, representative of State institutions eligible for assistance under this title, was established. This council meets with the Librarian and the Consultant, Special Programs, State Library twice a year to advise on the operation of the program.

LSCA TITLE IV-B: LIBRARY SERVICES TO THE HANDICAPPED

Library services for the blind and physically handicapped are provided by the Regional Library for the Blind, jointly operated by South Carolina and North Carolina. Services to borrowers, who for any reason cannot use conventional reading material, include talking book machines, talking books, books in braille, cassettes, tapes and books-in-large print. The service, including the mailing costs, is free.

On June 30, 1970, there were 1,014 blind readers and 182 handicapped readers in South Carolina using the service. In addition, there were 199 borrowers who are residents of institutions.

In the interest of providing better service to the blind and visually handicapped, two projects were initiated during the year.

SOUTH CAROLINA LIBRARY

JUN 30 1971

A Books-in-Large-Print Project was offered to libraries which met requirements for participation in State and Federal grants and with book budgets not exceeding $10,000. The State Library matched dollar for dollar up to $250 of local funds expended for books in large print. Nine library systems accepted this offer.

The State Library established browsing collections of talking books in three county libraries. Located in Charleston, Greenville, and Spartanburg, the collections are available to any blind or physically handicapped South Carolinian. Through this arrangement, the handicapped have direct access to reading materials and have the guidance of a librarian in selecting books.

The Advisory Council, composed of representatives of State and private agencies concerned with the visually and physically handicapped, has been helpful in suggesting ways of publicizing and improving the service to these groups.

LIBRARY LEGISLATION ENACTED, 1970

- S. C. Acts and Joint Resolutions, 1970; No. 1014. An Act to create the Marion County Library.
