DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION REPORTS ON ORGANIZATION

In early April, Department of Education officials revealed organizational details of the new U. S. Department of Education which will officially activate on May 7. An Office of Libraries and Learning Technologies has been created under the Assistant Secretary for Educational Research and Improvement (OERI). The new library unit will include major library programs as well as educational technology programs. ESEA, HEA, and LSCA library programs comprise $250 million, out of the total FY 1980 budget of $504 million for OERI. OERI is one of seven assistant secretaries for program areas.

The ALA Washington Office reports the placement of libraries within the new department caused considerable controversy, but the current placement is viewed as providing useful linkages between libraries and other educational improvement and technology programs.

FEDERAL BUDGET RECOMMENDATIONS FOR LIBRARY PROGRAMS REMAIN AT SAME LEVEL

On March 31, President Carter sent the revised balanced version of his FY 1981 budget to Congress. The new version contains no changes in major federal library grant programs from the budget figures submitted in January. The ALA Washington Office reports that libraries generally fared well, due in part to the White House Conference on Library and Information Services. However, the ALA Office stresses the importance of preserving these figures through the Congressional budget committee process.

EDGAR REGULATIONS ISSUED

The final Education Division General Administrative Regulations (EDGAR) were published on April 3 in the Federal Register. The regulations which will take effect on May 4 apply to direct grant and state-administered programs of the Education Division of HEW (to become the Department of Education on May 7). Reprints can be requested from the U. S. Office of Education, Room 4129, 400 Maryland Avenue, S. W., Washington, D. C. 20202. (202-245-7091).

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK ADDRESS

The following official Presidential statement was issued by Jimmy Carter to mark the observance of National Library Week.

National Library Week
April 13 to 19, 1980

No institution has made a greater contribution to our democratic society than the public library. Public libraries serve people of all ages and walks of life. They provide free access to knowledge through books and other related resources and offer the tools for individual growth, education, entertainment and personal self-fulfillment.

We live in very difficult times -- in an age of information and technological revolution. We are constantly making decisions on complex issues which require the ready availability of knowledge and information. We can look with pride and satisfaction to our nation's public library system in this regard.

The vitality of our society depends on the participation of all of us in the decision-making process. A well-informed citizenry is essential to the survival of our democratic institutions and to their continued growth and development. An enlightened public, openly debating controversial issues and constructively involved in the day to day community and county, will ensure the sustained progress of our society.

During this annual celebration of National Library Week I challenge all our people to join in discovering the pleasures and satisfactions which come from reading and to turn to our public libraries for the wealth of resources they offer.

NEWS FILM LIBRARY DONATED TO USC

The University of South Carolina has received the Twentieth Century-Fox Movietone news library containing over 60 million feet of film of major news events covering more than half a century. The film library, valued between $60-100 million, will be transferred to the University over the next three years. The film is to be housed in a planned multi-million dollar art center which is projected to be completed within the next four years. The University of South Carolina has agreed to provide computer access to the films. James W. Jackson, President of Education Productions Inc., has been named director of USC news film libraries.

LIBRARIES SPONSOR EXHIBIT DURING NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK

Several libraries in the Pee Dee region joined together to celebrate National Library Week. Library staff members from the Florence, Darlington, and Dillon county libraries, as well as the Florence-Darlington Technical College Library assisted at an exhibit at one of the regional shopping centers. Staff members explained library services and presented children's films, library slide shows, puppet shows, and story hours. The Friends of the Florence County Library also assisted at the exhibit, recruiting members and promoting library support.

STATE FUNDING COMPARED

In a recent report by the ALA Association of Specialized and Cooperative Library Agencies, comparisons were given for per capita funding of state libraries. South Carolina ranked 21 in the per capita amount of state aid to public libraries received from state legislatures for FY 1980. Presumably, this ranking will go up if the requested amount of 75¢ per capita for state aid is included in the final version of the budget. South Carolina ranked 38 in per capita library support when the total state library budget from all sources was considered.

FREE

The South Carolina State Library Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped has a statewide toll-free number (1-800-922-7818). Public libraries are encouraged to utilize this number to: inform the Division of individuals interested in Talking Book Service, inquire if a title is available in a recorded format, receive additional information about the service, etc. This toll-free number should also be given to anyone wishing to contact the Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped directly.

ATTORNEY OFFERS SUGGESTIONS FOR TRUSTEES

Last spring, Chicago attorney Newton Minow addressed the Executive Board of the American Library Association on the general duties, obligations, and responsibilities of trustees and directors of not-for-profit organizations. He said that the same duties of obedience, diligence and loyalty which are expected by law of corporate directors will probably also continue to apply for trustees and directors of charitable organizations such as libraries. In view of potential liabilities of trustees, he offered the following guide to carrying out an individual trustee's responsibilities:

- "1. Attend most, and preferably all, of the meetings of the board and of the board committees on which you serve as a member, or resign immediately.
- "2. Make sure that complete minutes are kept of all board and committee meetings and that those minutes are sent to all of the board members. Carefully review the minutes which you receive as promptly as possible.
- "3. On any transaction of substance which is proposed in a meeting at which you are in attendance, or disclosed in the minutes of any meeting which you missed, seek any further information which seems to you to be prudent as soon as possible and make sure that your concern or objections are made a part of the minutes of the appropriate body.
- "4. On any matters which come up about which you have serious reservations as to legal requirements, do not hesitate to request and insist on a legal opinion from your charitable organization's legal counsel before allowing the proposed action to proceed.
- "5. If your board has not adopted a conflict of interest policy, urge that it do so...

- "6. Make sure that you call to the attention of the board or board committee the fact of any possible conflict of interest on any issue which arises, and abstain from further discussion of or voting on the matter. Make sure your abstention is recorded in the minutes. Disclose any information you have which other members may not as to why the proposed action may be to the disadvantage of the charity, and make sure that this is disclosed in the minutes.
- "7. If the responsibility for supervising investments has been delegated to a committee of the board, make sure that the delegation is set forth in a resolution with considerable specificity. The committee should be required to develop investment objectives which are submitted to the full governing board for approval."

CURRENT SOURCES OF FUNDS FOR PUBLIC LIBRARY CONSTRUCTION

Despite the fact that Title II of the Library Services and Construction Act has not been funded since 1973, public libraries do have other sources available for construction grants. The following programs currently provide possible opportunities for funding public library construction:

General Revenue Sharing

Public libraries are eligible for assistance from General Revenue Sharing funds at the local and State levels as provided in the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972. For information, contact local governmental officials.

Community Development

Certain types of Federal assistance for public library construction are provided by Title I, Community Development, of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Assistance is permissible for construction of neighborhood branch libraries. Central libraries in communities under 25,000 in population are eligible. Central libraries in communities over 25,000 in population are not eligible except under certain conditions. Information and applications may be obtained from local governmental officials or HUD field offices.

Farmers Home Administration

Community facilities loans are available from the Farmers Home Administration for a library construction project in a community of under 10,000 in population. Five percent loans are made to official entities of government, with priority given to communities under 5,500 in population. Farmers Home Administration county and State offices provide information and application forms for the program.

Appalachian Regional Development

Funds for public library construction are available in communities located in Appalachia under the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965. The entire State of West Virginia and parts of 12 additional States are eligible for assistance: Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia. The program provides up to 80 percent Federal funds. Information and application forms are available from State Appalachian Regional Commission offices.

ACCESSIBILITY WORKSHOP

On April 23, 1980 the South Carolina State Library sponsored a workshop on handicapped accessibility. As a requirement of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, all agencies receiving federal funds must operate programs that are accessible to the handicapped. The purpose of this workshop was to acquaint public librarians, trustees and architects of the requirements of Section 504. Particular attention was given to the self-evaluations and transition plans required. Sixty-one people representing 32 public library systems, the College of Librarianship, USC, and the State Library attended.

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE VIDEOTAPE AVAILABLE

"Bringing Information to People," a twenty-minute videotape made at the White House Conference on Library and Information Services is available on interlibrary loan through the S. C. State Library. White House Conference officials suggest that the videotape be used at follow-up meetings of White House Conference delegates and with any programs involving the future of library and information services. Since there are no restrictions on broadcast use showings can be arranged with local public television stations. Additional copies of the videotape can be ordered for $50 from USER, P. O. Box 19112, 20th Street Station, Washington, D. C. 20036. (202-483-9018). There are also tentative plans to convert the videotape to 16mm film.

CENSUS UPDATE

Since the 1980 census was taken during last month, librarians may be interested in the preliminary publishing schedule which has been set by the Census Bureau for population reports: Preliminary Population and Housing Unit Counts, October 1980; Final Population and Housing Unit Counts, February, 1981; Number of Inhabitants, April, 1981; General Population Characteristics, August, 1981; General Social and Economic Characteristics, April 1982, and Detailed Population Characteristics, September, 1982. Librarians can keep up to date on census information through a subscription to Data User's News, a monthly news bulletin available for $4.00 from Subscriber Services Section (Publications), Bureau of the Census, Washington, D. C. 20233.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

Florence County: Elizabeth Boatwright Coker was the featured speaker during the April program of the library's "Bookbeat" series. The library sponsored a quilting demonstration in April. The library reports that the Florence area SOLINET cluster completed their training and began using the terminal in April. The Florence cluster is composed of the Florence County Library, Darlington County Library, and the Florence-Darlington Technical College Library, with the terminal located at the Florence County Library.

Georgetown County: The library's "Books Sandwiched-In" lunch program recently featured a talk on World War I air warfare and South Carolinian Elliott White Springs.

Greenville County: The National Little Theatre of the Deaf performed on March 17 for 192 hearing-impaired children. The appearance of the theatre group which has performed in the United States and Europe was funded by the Greenville Speech and Hearing and Learning Center. In April, the library displayed folk art by Queena Stovall, noted as one of the most significant folk artists of this century.

The library staff will hold a reception honoring Larry Nix, library director, on May 3 at the library's auditorium. Mr. Nix, whose resignation is effective May 8, has accepted a consultant position with the Division for Library Services of Wisconsin Dept. of Public Instruction.

Lee County: To celebrate National Library Week, the library held a book mark coloring contest for children and a painting exhibition by local artist Audrey Godby.

Marion County: During National Library Week, the library presented a slide program on the Holy Land. Artifacts and dress of the region were also displayed. The Mullins Library was the site of an art demonstration by Walter Clay, a local art instructor.

Richland County: The library helped in a display at a local shopping mall during National Nutrition Week (March 1-4). Adult and juvenile books and booklists on nutrition were included in the display. Recent exhibits at the library have included antique tools, American short stories, and the 1977 Southern Books Award Traveling Exhibit.

Sumter County: The library concluded its 1979-80 lecture and film series recently. The lecture series had featured programs on personal hygiene, space colonization, Johnathan Edwards, and a poetry reading. Chapman Milling, Director, served as a panelist for the Literature and Literacy Conference held at Morris College recently.

York County: During May, the library plans several special programs. "Prevention of Home Burglary and Physical Assault" will be presented on May 6 and 7. The library is also presenting a series on canning and freezing entitled "What to do with a bumper crop." In addition, programs will also be held on genealogical research and famous American figures. The library is distributing program interest cards in all library branches. The cards request patrons' comments on library programs as well as suggestions for other types of programs that patrons would like to see.

FOCUS ON SERVING CHILDREN

From the Desk of the Field Service Librarian for Children's Services:

Evaluation of Children's Film Workshop

Forty-two librarians returned evaluation forms after the Children's Film Workshop. The evaluations were overwhelmingly positive except for one participant who felt the workshop was a total waste. Participants felt that the ideas for programming and previewing films were most valuable. The activities (collage, etc.) and Tom Davenport were rated less valuable, although several commented they were glad to hear Davenport. Several librarians wished the workshop had been longer and various people wished there had been less or more activities and less or more discussion.

The real evaluation of the workshop will come as you program children's film. Ron Anderson and I are very anxious to hear how you are using children's films, what works and doesn't and any problems you are having. Please share your experiences either in your usage reports or by writing to me so that we can share the information with libraries around the state.

One initial response has come from Bettie Battle at Kershaw County Library who used Amanita with a group of children ages 4-8. She told the children they were going on a journey and asked them to think about where they were. Then she had the children close their eyes until the film began. She reports the children loved the film, talking throughout about the film and anxious to talk about it after viewing. A realistic group, most said the journey had been in a forest although a few believed it was another planet. One girl said "I was scared. That music was scary, but it was a nice kind of scared." Since this was one of the least liked films from the workshop I thought you would be interested in this experience. Experimenting with film and children can work!

Promocional Materials

The Children's Book Council has recently published two bookmark book lists, "Books about Dogs" and "Books about Cats". Books on the lists were selected by Pamela D. Pollack of School Library Journal.

In an effort to promote year-round reading, the Council has also produced four attractive posters, one for each season, as well as seasonal reading book-marks containing poetry by Myra Cohn Livingston. For information about these and other Children's Book Council publications request a brochure from the Children's Book Council, Inc., 67 Irving Place, New York, New York 10013.

News From Laurens County Library

As part of the Laurens County Library's fiftieth birthday celebration, the children's department showed the feature length film The Rescuers at the main library, branches, and some schools. Over 1800 children saw the film.

At the end of their preschool story hour session, children's librarian Margaret Haynes gave parents a letter encourageing them to make regular visits to the library with their children and to read to them regularly. This personal touch seems an excellent way of reinforcing the message that reading is important.

Did You Know?

The State Library currently receives children's books from a number of publishers for examination and review purposes. You are welcome to come in and examine these books any time during State Library hours. Since these books are shelved in the meeting room, it is suggested that you check with the library receptionist before making a trip to be sure that the room is free. Books are kept for approximately one year.

It's Story Time - And the Kids Do the Reading

With the help of Sister David, a Senior Aid from the Colleton Senior Citizens Services, the Colleton County Library has begun a special program for young readers. Sister David is a listener, and children learning to read are encouraged to stop by the library and read to her. This gives them an opportunity to practice reading and get positive reinforcement of their new skills. As Sister David says, "they look forward to coming in. It's not often they get someone's undivided attention for half an hour. Teachers cannot spend that much time with each child in the classroom, and it is hard for mothers with other children to sit down for long with just one." Children sign up in advance to read to Sister David. Currently there are fourteen first and second-graders sharing stories with Sister David through this special program at the library.

Captioned Films for the Deaf

Libraries considering programs for the deaf and hearing-impaired will want to know about the source for captioned films for the deaf. These films must be used with deaf and hearing-impaired patrons. The Greenville County Library for several years has shown captioned feature length films for the deaf and their families. Also available are many other films for adults and children. Libraries considering captioned films programs for deaf children should, however, remember that these children generally are slower to develop reading skills; therefore, these would not be appropriate for young children. However, showing captioned films can be an excellent family program for the deaf and hearing-impaired in your area who find themselves cut off from most community cultural events.

In order to gain access to these films, you must register. You can request an application packet from the Captioned Films for the Deaf Distribution Center, 5034 Wisconsin Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20016. CFDDC will send all forms and instructions plus other information to you. Materials are loaned free of charge except for return postage. The South Carolina School for the Deaf and Blind is a depository library, and most of your requests would be able to be filled through them. They have approximately 1,000 titles in their film library; requests not filled there will be forwarded to another depository.

LIBRARY PUBLIC RELATIONS ACTIVITIES SLATED FOR ALA CONFERENCE

The Public Relations Section of ALA's Library Administration and Management Association is sponsoring a workshop prior to the annual ALA conference. The 2 1/2 day pre-conference will be held June 26-28 at the New York Sheraton. Specialists in library public relations will cover such topics as newsletters, annual reports, graphics, creative programming, writing for the press and broadcast media, preparing public service announcements, community analysis, and the librarian's image. Registration is $75 for LAMA members-slightly higher for non-members. Office at ALA headquarters. Registration forms and information are available from the LAMA Office at ALA headquarters.

The Public Relations Section will also be presenting its annual "Swap 'n' Shop" during the ALA annual conference in New York. All types of libraries are encouraged to submit public relations materials (flyers, brochures, bookmarks, bibliographies) for distribution at the "Swap 'n' Shop." Minimum quantities of 200-300 are preferred although smaller quantities will be accepted. Packages of materials must be addressed exactly as following to assure receipt by the committee: George W. Barlow, Jr., Chief Librarian, McGraw-Hill, Inc., 1221 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York 10020, Library 18th Floor, "Hold for ALA Meeting - July 1980."

ALA PUBLICATIONS

The following recent publications of the American Library Association can be ordered from the Order Department, American Library Association, 50 Huron Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK DATES

The American Library Association's National Library Week Committee has established the dates of National Library Week through 1990. The dates were chosen with special consideration given to the dates of Easter and Passover to avoid conflicts. The dates are as follows: 1981-April 5-11, 1982-April 18-24, 1983-April 17-23, 1984-April 8-14, 1985-April 14-20, 1986-April 13-19, 1987-April 5-11, 1988-April 17-23, 1989-April 9-15, and 1990-April 22-28.

LIBRARY TRUSTEE HONORED

Mrs. Suzanne Cameron Linder has been named Woman of the Year, 1980 by the Bennettsville Junior Charity League.

Mrs. Linder is trustee of the Marlboro County Library, currently serving the board as secretary. She is a member of various community groups, including the Marlboro Historical Society, and is the author of The Medical History of Marlboro County and William Louis Poteat, Prophet of Progress, a biography of one of the key figures in the political and cultural development of North Carolina. She recently organized a county-wide group for the relief of child abuse and neglect.

During her five years as board member, Mrs. Linder has been a vital force in Marlboro County Library's successful campaign for a new library building, which was dedicated last fall.

New members recently appointed to the South Carolina LSCA Advisory Council are Robert Coffey, Child Development Coordinator, South Carolina Department of Social Services, and Suzanne Bridges, Executive Director, Federation Center for the Blind.

*****

A guide to religious publications recorded in disc, cassette, and braille formats is available from the South Carolina State Library Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped. The large print bibliography contains annotations to approximately 300 titles.
