SOUTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
G. BRYAN PATRICK, JR.
Commissioner

Unusual Events Spice '79 Tobacco Season

Tobacco experienced one of the shortest marketing seasons in South Carolina flue cured history in 1979. Early climatic conditions led to a quality crop which was reduced in total volume.

Cool, wet weather and blue mold in the field during crucial growing periods accounted for an eight percent drop in the crop while herbicide contamination caused a five percent loss in volume.

South Carolina's 40 warehouses on 10 markets operated for only 12 weeks in 1979.

Producer sales were $158,529,962.43, down from the $190,537,-635.61 of 1978. South Carolina type 13 tobacco brought an average price per hundred pounds of $141.86, an increase of four dollars over 1978.

"Several unprecedented problems confronted our South Carolina tobacco growers in 1979," explained Commissioner of Agriculture Bryan Patrick. "Blue mold in the field is rare in U. S. flue cured tobacco and the loss from herbicide contamination led to our reduction in leaf offered for sale.

"Despite these problems, we sold a quality crop which topped the flue cured belt in average price," he injected. "These problems put our growers to the test, but the hardships endured only reinforced our reputation as a leader in the production of quality bright leaf."

Contaminated Tobacco Destroyed

South Carolina tobacco growers were shocked and dismayed in early June when many of them were discovered to have used a fertilizer which had been accidentally contaminated with Picloram, a potent herbicide.

A cobra-like appearance in the top of tobacco plants which had puzzled agriculture leaders earlier was traced back to a common denominator . . . the fertilizer.

The portion of the tobacco crop contaminated was condemned and some 4,500 acres were disked into the ground.

South Carolina's good name as a flue cured tobacco producer was at stake.

"In fact," explained Commissioner Patrick, "the entire U. S. flue cured crop as a whole had its reputation on the line. Farmers were asked to exercise their convictions in this matter. They were urged to completely destroy any field of contaminated tobacco and not risk endangering the future by trying to market it."

It was a difficult decision, but South Carolina growers elected to destroy the crop rather than chance "tainting" the marketing of the crop.

The fertilizer company involved sent adjusters into the fields to begin making settlement offers. By October, all but a few claims had been settled. Over 7.6 million dollars were paid off in initial payment which amounted to more than seven million pounds of leaf.

"It was a sticky situation," said Commissioner Patrick, "but everyone involved handled their part in a commendable manner. We appreciate this effort to keep our tobacco economy moving."

Activities Increased

With things happening on many fronts, the South Carolina Department of Agriculture took part in many activities affecting the tobacco industry in 1979.

Compensation in a fair manner for those farmers who had used the herbicide contaminated fertilizer was insisted upon by the South Carolina Department of Agriculture.

"We urged the parent fertilizer company to settle quickly with the farmers in a fair and just manner," noted Commissioner Patrick. "The decision by farmers to destroy a portion of their crop with the uncertainty of reparation was a hard one. I'm proud of our farmers for taking this initiative."

At the urging of the tobacco industry, the South Carolina Department of Agriculture took the lead in getting the U. S. Department of Agriculture to maintain the four-day sales week. The U. S. Customs Service also was requested to re-examine the scrap tobacco importation issue.

The South Carolina Department of Agriculture cooperated in hosting two foreign trade delegations. One group came from the Peoples Republic of China to visit several markets. A second group was a delegation from the Egyptian Eastern Tobacco Company.

To disseminate market information, a Tobacco Market News Office was manned in Dillon in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"Pride in Tobacco" became a well known phrase over the tobacco producing Pee Dee area. In cooperation with a major cigarette manufacturing firm, the South Carolina Department of Agriculture helped to coordinate the expansion of this promotion program.

Several hundred business leaders attended a supper at Florence. A highlight of this event was the presentation of a photo of tobacco growing on the State Capitol complex grounds being presented to the manufacturing company president.

Planting of this tobacco was instigated by the South Carolina Department of Agriculture.

Weighing Was Important

Weights and measures of the tobacco industry once again proved to be a vital concern of the Consumer Services Division of the South Carolina Department of Agriculture.

This activity began before the selling season opened when meters on fuel oil and L.P. gas trucks, which served the tobacco producing areas, were calibrated for accuracy by consumer services specialists. They also checkweighed scales in all tobacco auction warehouses and all hand trucks used at them. Tare weights, necessary in the handling of the crop weights, were posted.

Throughout the sales season, a pair of two-man teams plus a supervisor operated on the 10 markets for five days per week. "We were there for the opening bell and the closing sale, too," declared Charles T. Smith, director of the Consumer Services Division. "Our emphasis was directed heavily at the weighing practices of the 40 warehouses in South Carolina. Tobacco was a high priced commodity in 1979 and we wanted the weight to be accurate for all parties involved."
