SC AgriBiz & Farm Expo Offers Innovation and Focus on Farm Safety

Chances are you've seen mentions of the SC AgriBiz & Farm Expo in the Market Bulletin throughout the last few months. You've probably also heard public service announcements on your local radio station or heard a friend or neighbor talking about the event. The best way to know if something is really good is to check it out. That's what the SC Department of Agriculture is inviting you to do January 16 – 17 at the Florence Civic Center.

Several agriculture organizations from across the state spent the last year making sure the Expo offers something for farmers of all sizes. Whether you farm 50 acres or several thousand, the New Year is a good time to identify what improvements can be made to your operation. That's where the Expo can help.

The two-day event offers several education sessions including a discussion on technological innovations in agriculture and what it means for the industry. Another session explores innovations in irrigation technology. Some of the topics in that session include implementation of computers, GPS, remote control, and Variable Rate Irrigation.

This year's Expo is also highlighting safety with Commissioner Weathers taking part in a grain bin rescue demonstration. The National Education Center for Agricultural Safety will offer a classroom component from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Jan. 16. The rescue demonstration is set for 12:30 p.m.

If you haven't already made plans to attend, it is not too late! Admission is $5 a day, and there are several ticketed events like the Taste of SC and Commissioner's Breakfast, which benefits the SC Commissioner's School for Agriculture. For more information on those events and other details about the expo, visit www.agriculture.sc.gov and look under Hot Topics for 2014 SC AgriBiz & Farm Expo.

What's in a Title?

South Carolina's peach industry continues to thrive, producing more peaches than any other state on the East Coast. If that is the case, why is Georgia the Peach State instead of South Carolina? After all, the facts lead to that logical question.

Last year, South Carolina producers sold more than 2,200 truckloads of the freshest, juiciest and tastiest peaches on the commercial market. Georgia producers sold 850 truckloads. Year after year, the pattern continues with more than 14,000 acres of trees, South Carolina produces more than twice the number of fresh fruit than Georgia.

Nursery & Landscape Professionals to Meet in Myrtle Beach

Landscape contractors, greenhouse growers, nursery growers, grounds maintenance professionals and others in the nursery industry should make plans to attend the S.C. Nursery and Landscape Association Conference at the Myrtle Beach Convention Center on Feb. 5-7.

The SC Horticulture Industry Market Place and seminars offer "green" professionals the opportunity to learn, earn International Society Arboriculture CEU's, SC, NC, & GA Pesticide Applicator Re-certification credits, visit the 250-plus booth trade show, and be at the beach all in the same trip.

Highlights of the 2014 conference include:

- A Behind the Scenes Tour of Moore Farms Botanical Garden.
- The trade show, which features exhibitors of a vast array of plant material, equipment, supplies and services. New this year on the trade show floor is The Oasis, where you can relax, charge your cell phone, get a drink at the cash bar, have a massage, and visit with friends.
- More than 20 educational seminars offered such as Organics in the Landscape, Powerful Timesaving Tools and Strategies for QuickBooks Users, water quality, plant diseases, a Get Prepared for Spring Boot Camp and so much more.

Happy New Year!

Hugh E. Weathers
Commissioner

Resolutions and Plans

With each New Year beginning, we focus our thoughts to what the future will bring. It's easy to make resolutions. If I had kept all my resolutions that I've made, I'd weigh 150 pounds and shoot par golf when I got out on the course. While making a plan for a successful year is a little more difficult, it might be a better use of your time.

Farmers already know that, of course. Most of us have some kind of long-range business plans. Some more detailed than others. Gone are the days of hoping for good weather and good prices. 2013 was a reminder of that. We now have the technology and the foresight to influence our harvests, and our futures.

Take irrigation, for example. South Carolina's rainfall averages 48 inches a year, but rain doesn't always come when we need it. A record number of farmers have already installed irrigation systems. To quote one farmer, "Irrigation controls your destiny." Being able to put the right amount of water on a crop, at the right time, is crucial to optimum harvests.

With today's technology and research going on at Clemson about its application, farmers can determine exactly what each field needs under the soil, as well as in it. We have a better understanding of how water travels, so we know where and how to irrigate. We expect to see even more irrigation systems cropping up all over the state this year.

When submitting ads by FAX or MAIL include a complete name, address, phone number, and county IN YOUR AD.

SC Market Bulletin Regulations

1. Only ads pertaining to agricultural products and items used in actual growth, harvesting, and disposal of such agricultural products are published.
2. One ad per category. Up to four different categories per household are allowed.
3. Only ads with South Carolina addresses are accepted. Ads from out-of-state are NOT permitted.
4. The advertiser's complete name, street address, county listing, and phone number with area code are required on each ad submitted. However, only the advertiser's name, county, and phone number are listed in the ad.
5. Ads will be published only one time. To include in another issue, ads must be resubmitted before each issue's deadline with all the required information. The deadline date can be found in the top left hand corner of the front page under the Market Bulletin header.
6. "For Sale" ads must include a price.
7. No sealed bids or legal notices for sale will be printed. Notices will not be published for consignment sales.
8. Each ad is limited to 150 characters and must include name, county, phone number. (Characters include the alphabet, spaces, and punctuation marks.)
9. Ads are NOT accepted from commercial entities, including but not limited to dealers, merchants or representatives of commercial establishments, including real estate agents, unless the property in the ad is personally owned by such person. Persons who have business licenses to sell agricultural and non-agricultural items are not eligible to advertise. U.S. Post Office regulations prohibit the publication of commercial ads, because of periodical postage privileges.
10. The Market Bulletin does NOT accept responsibility for ads appearing in the publication. Ads are received in good faith. Notifying the Market Bulletin of evidence of bad faith on the part of any advertiser is appreciated.
11. The Market Bulletin reserves the right to decline, edit and/or verify any ads or notices submitted for publication.

12. Special Rules for specific advertising categories:

Dog Category

Only dog-for-sale notices are published. Such advertisements shall only be published as space permits. All dog-for-sale ads must include copies of a rabies vaccination certificate for dogs 12 weeks and older. Ads for dogs under 12 weeks of age must be accompanied by the date of birth. No dog kennel or breeder ads are permitted.

Equine Category

Horse, mule and donkey ads must include an unaltered legible current copy of a negative Coggins test within the previous 12 months. If the animal is under six months old, the date of birth must be included in the ad.

Farm Equipment Category

Farm equipment offered for sale must include a signed statement such as: "This machinery/equipment has been used by me in an agricultural endeavor and is not offered for sale by an equipment dealer or commercial enterprise." Only farm truck ads with legitimate farm truck license tag numbers will be accepted. The farm truck- FM (Farm Machinery) current license tag number issued by the SC Department of Motor Vehicles must be included with the ad.

Farm Labor Category

Notices are accepted for agricultural work only and not for housework, nursing or companionship needs.

Farm Land Category

Farm land listed must be for at least five acres under cultivation or grazing. The type of land also must be included: pasture, timber, crop cultivated, and must include a signed statement such as: "This land is my personal property and I am not a real estate agent." Ads from real estate agents are not accepted unless they personally own the property offered for sale.

Miscellaneous

Raw milk, eggs, butter and cheese products officially permitted by the SC Department of Health and Environmental Control Dairy Division, but not licensed for commercial sales, will be published.

Seeds Category

All seed advertisements must be accompanied by a copy of a current Seed Lab Test.

Keep this page for reference when submitting an ad.

Resolutions and Plans

As row crop farms get bigger, the equipment increases in size and efficiency. For example, cotton harvesters do so much more in the field. They now pick it, bale it, and roll it out. One (very expensive machine) replaces at least 3 other pieces of equipment. Big equipment gets a lot more done in one pass than it could 20 years ago. Efficiency is rooted in how many times you cross the field. A 16-row sprayer, or a 50-foot disk harrow, can cover a field in a fraction of the time it used to take.

On other fronts, seed varieties continue to improve. Stacked gene technology allows farmers to select for herbicide resistance, disease resistance, and a number of specific traits that affect individual fields. The test plots you see along the roads provide valuable information about which varieties will be used in the future. The work that goes into a bag of seed reduces trips across the field – a goal of sustainable agriculture.

Let's not forget GPS and computer technology. Unheard of a few years ago, GPS systems on equipment now allow farmers to use "precision agriculture" by planting more efficiently, put fertilizer out in precise amounts, and harvest the exact row that was planted in the spring. Precision agriculture is here now, and it's here to stay.

Interestingly, we're seeing a lot more growth in small and medium size family farms. With the increased interest in organic farming and food production, small farmers are specializing in everything from herbs to heirloom tomatoes to sweet corn. With better information, they are managing their farms for maximum production. That means higher quality food on the table, and everybody likes that idea. There are several farm management programs in the design phase, at least one from right here in South Carolina, that will help with all the new food safety regulations coming.

So as you plunge into the New Year, remember that our farmers are already deep into the cycle of planning, planting, mapping, measuring, calculating and researching. Farmers have to be scientists, technologists and engineers. My brother and nephew had this discussion just before Christmas so we could lay out a plan for 2014 for crops and finances. Just like the Weathers family, all farmers are up for the challenge. In fact, we're eager for it to begin.

USDA and Minority Landowner Magazine Host Workshops and Demonstrations for Farmers

Farmers and landowners can learn about USDA programs and services and see conservation demonstrations during two-day workshops in January

Minority Landowner magazine is hosting three workshops around the state to help private farmers and landowners better understand the wealth of programs and services that USDA can provide them. Registration is free and includes lunch. Sponsored by the USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), the two-day sessions are free to attend and are scheduled for:

Aiken County: Jan. 8-9
Newberry Hall
117 Newberry Street
Aiken, SC 29801
803-649-4221, ext. 108

Colleton County: Jan. 22-23
Colleton Museum & Farmers Market
506 E. Washington Street
Walterboro, SC 29488
Colleton: 843-549-1821, ext. 111

Florence/Clarendon Counties: Jan. 29-30
The National Bean Market
111 Henry Street
Lake City, SC 29560
Florence: 843-669-9686, ext. 114,
Clarendon: 803-435-2612, ext. 114

Start time for all sessions is 8 a.m. each day.

Utilizing Technology in the Beef Industry to Measure Efficiency

Clemson Bull Test – Balancing performance and efficiency to maximize profits

Dr. Matthew Burns:

Clemson University Cooperative Extension Animal Scientist – Beef Specialist

It is a good time to be in the cattle business. Cattle prices are high, but production inputs for managing a cattle business are at record highs too. In response to these record high inputs, Clemson University installed a new feeding system to help measure individual feed intake. The Clemson University Bull Test has been operating for more than 30 years as a concentrate, performance-based bull test. Utilization of the new GrowSafe feeding system (GrowSafe Beef Systems, Alberta Canada) will provide feed intake and, consequently, residual feed intake as a measure of efficiency. This data can be balanced with standard performance data to allow producers to make more informed decisions about animal performance and how it may affect their bottom line.

I mentioned above that we would use the data to calculate a measure of efficiency known as residual feed intake. Residual feed intake is simply: actual feed intake – expected feed intake = residual feed intake. What does this number mean? A positive residual feed intake means the bull ate more feed than expected to achieve his actual performance, whereas a negative residual feed intake means the bull ate less feed than expected to achieve his actual performance. For example, if we have two bulls (start weights are the same) both gaining 2.5 lbs per day over a 75-day period, we would expect them to eat approximately 1500 lbs of feed per bull over the test period. However, bull No. 1 ate 1717 lbs of feed and bull No. 2 ate 1232 lbs of feed. Bull No. 1 residual feed intake would be: 1717 – 1500 = 217 lbs, and bull No. 2 residual feed intake would be: 1232 – 1500 = -268. Overall, bull No. 1 ate 485 lbs more feed over a 75-day test period to gain the same amount of weight as bull No. 2. Therefore, in this scenario, bull No. 2 could be considered more efficient than bull No. 1.

As producers, it is important to remember that our goal in applying selection pressure is to keep everything in balance. We certainly don't want to over select for certain traits or completely forget about other variables. The beef industry has made available a multitude of different indexes, EPD's, and ratios to help us select for better cattle based on our individual parameters, but, until now, efficiency of individual animals has escaped our grasp. The GrowSafe System now allows us to better identify and utilize efficient animals. Clemson University Bull Test Facility currently has four 5-acre paddocks with 10 GrowSafe nodes, which have the capacity to hold approximately 80 animals on test at any given time. Nominations for the Bull Test are due in August with a 112-day test running from September to December and sale the first Saturday of February (February 1, 2014). The industry now has a facility/system that is being utilized not only at Clemson University, but also at other universities and private institutions to help better identify these more efficient animals for the future of our industry. Calling All Goat Owners

Goat Production and Parasite Management Workshop Will Be Held Feb. 28

Clemson University Cooperative Extension Service will conduct a goat management seminar on Friday, Feb. 28, at the Pee Dee Research and Education Center in Florence.

The program will cover several important aspects of goat production, including:

- Pasture Renovation for Better Forage Production
- Summer and Winter Annuals and Grazing Management
- Billy Selection
- Replacement Doe Selection and Management
- Avoiding Parasite Resistance
- Prevention and Treatment of Internal Parasites
- Fecal Egg Counts using Microscope (hands on)

Speakers include Dr. Patty Scharko, Field Extension Veterinarian with Clemson University, and livestock and forage specialists Brian Beer, Kevin Campbell, Lee Van Vlakte and Amber Starnes. The program, which runs from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., should prove beneficial to new and experienced goat owners alike.

The $70 fee includes a comprehensive notebook and lunch. The registration deadline is Feb. 21, and space is limited. Applications are available at all Clemson Extension offices or contact Lee Van Vlakte at 843-661-4800 or rii@clemson.edu.

Nursery & Landscape Professionals to Meet

The trade show will be open Thursday, Feb. 6, from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. and Friday, Feb. 7 from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. Various seminars will be held each of the three days, plus a golf tournament and a sporting clays tournament.

All events are at the Myrtle Beach Convention Center at 2101 North Oak Street. For additional information call the SCNLA office at 803-743-4284. Visit www.scnla.com for the show brochure and on-line registration.

What's in a Title?

The title of "The Peach State" isn't just about production numbers. Commercial peach production began in Georgia, and it is history, not volume, which grants our neighbor the title.

The development of "modern" peach varieties began in the late 1850s when a banker in Macon, Ga. planted a number of clingstone peach trees. He had several varieties, and he shared the best of his stock with Col. Lewis Rumph of Marshallville, Ga. Col. Rumph's grandson named one of the better tasting varieties 'Elberta' in 1889, for his beloved wife. The family is also known for the 'Georgia Belle' variety.

These two varieties became so popular that a new industry was born in the Southeast, and both of these varietal names are still household jargon.

The SC Peach Council prides itself in educating consumers that South Carolina is the Tastier Peach State. Prior to the start of the 2014 season, more than 100,000 young peach trees will be planted in the three predominant peach-growing areas of the state: the Piedmont, the Ridge, and the Sandhills.

The industry is committed to increasing the amount of fruit available to consumers each year – a thought that should make you smile while you dream about summer's sweet fruit during these cold winter months! In fact, 40 different varieties of our state fruit will be harvested this year, enabling consumers to enjoy what will we hope be another record-breaking harvest of peaches from May through September.

While Georgia may have made history in peach production, South Carolina is making its future!
