HAMPTON PLANTATION STATE HISTORIC SITE

Tucked away among live oaks and magnolias in the Santee Delta region of South Carolina, Hampton Plantation Historic Site is a National Historic Landmark and home to the remote final remnants of a Colonial-era rice plantation. The plantation's Georgian-style mansion and well-kept grounds serve as an interpretive site for the system of slavery that helped build such plantations in South Carolina into the great generators of wealth in early American history.

The property tells the story of the freed people who made their homes in the Santee Delta region for generations after emancipation. Visitors can explore the mansion, wander the plantation grounds or look out at Wambaw Creek at the remains of rice fields that once stretched as far as the eye could see.
